II. The consideration of the situation in Central America in international political bodies does not preclude the Court from adjudicating the legal dispute between Nicaragua and the United States . . .	414
A. The Security Council, the General Assembly and the Organization of American States	414
B. The Contadora process	417
III. All the parties necessary for adjudication of the dispute presented by the Application are before the Court	423
A. The Monetary Gold Removed from Rome in 1943 case does not support the United States argument that there are third parties in whose absence this case cannot go forward	424
B. All of the parties, the lawfulness of whose conduct is at issue in this suit, are present before the Court	427
C. Even assuming arguendo , that “armed attacks” by Nicaragua on third States would implicate their legal interests to such an extent that the Court could not proceed in their absence, the conditions requiring the presence of those States could not be established before the merits phase of the proceedings	430

1. Any defect in the process of adherence to the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice was entirely a matter of form and did not raise any question of essential validity	383
2. In the context of jurisdictional instruments the criterion is that of the reality of consent	383
3. Nicaragua has demonstrated by its consistent conduct for 38 years that it has fully consented to the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court	385
4. The United States, by accepting the effectiveness of Nicaragua's declaration for 38 years, has waived any objection to the formal defect in ratification of the Protocol of Signature	387
II. The letter of 6 April 1984 from Secretary of State Shultz cannot modify or terminate the United States declaration of 14 August 1946	389
A. The United States letter of 6 April 1984 : its effect as a purported modification of the United States declaration	389
1. The legal nature of the obligations resulting from declarations of acceptance of jurisdiction under the Optional Clause	389
2. The inferences to be drawn from the contractual nature of the legal bond resulting from interlocking declarations	392
3. The intention of the declarant State excludes unilateral modification in the present case	393
4. The position in the doctrine	394
5. The position in State practice	395
6. Conclusion	395
B. The United States letter of 6 April 1984 : its effect as a termination of the United States declaration of 1946	395
C. The principle of reciprocity does not permit the United States to modify or terminate its 1946 declaration less than six months after notice	397
1. The principles of the Law of Treaties contradict the United States argument	398
2. The principle of reciprocity is inapplicable to the time-limits expressed in declarations relating to termination and similar matters	398
D. The Letter of 6 April 1984 is invalid both under United States law and international law, by reason of fundamental absence of authority and is thus ineffective to alter the United States declaration submitting to the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court	400
III. The Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation between Nicaragua and the United States provides an independent basis for jurisdiction under Article 36 (1) of the Statute of the Court as to violations of that treaty	403
Conclusions on jurisdiction	406
PART TWO. THE ADMISSIBILITY OF NICARAGUA'S APPLICATION OF 9 APRIL 1984	408
I. The Court is not precluded from adjudicating the legal dispute between Nicaragua and the United States by reason of the surrounding political circumstances	409

XII. Submission on jurisdiction in these proceedings on interim measures	79
STATEMENT BY MR. ARGÜELLO GÓMEZ (NICARAGUA)	80
STATEMENT BY MR. ROBINSON (UNITED STATES OF AMERICA)	81
A prima facie showing of jurisdiction is a necessary precondition to an indication of interim measures	86
The facts relevant to jurisdiction that are now available to the Court: Nicaragua's failure to accept the Court's jurisdiction is beyond dispute	89
ARGUMENT OF MR. KOZAK (UNITED STATES OF AMERICA)	96
The regional peace process: the San José Conference and the "Contadora process"	96
The endorsement of the "Contadora process" by the United Nations	101
The United States has fully supported the "Contadora process"	103
ARGUMENT OF MR. MCGOVERN (UNITED STATES OF AMERICA)	105
United States qualification of its acceptance of the Court's compulsory jurisdiction: its note of 6 April 1984	105
Other States of Central America, whose rights and interests are directly implicated, are indispensable parties	110
The Contadora process has been properly instituted to resolve problems affecting the whole of Central America; it would be detrimentally affected by a judicial intervention	111
The primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security is assigned by the Charter of the United Nations to the Security Council	113
STATEMENT BY MR. ROBINSON (UNITED STATES OF AMERICA)	115
REPLY OF MR. ARGÜELLO GÓMEZ (NICARAGUA)	117
STATEMENT BY MR. ARGÜELLO GÓMEZ (NICARAGUA)	118
ARGUMENT OF PROFESSOR BROWNLIE (NICARAGUA)	122
State practice under the optional clause is governed by the law of treaties	123
