

The International
Journal of

Human Rights

Volume 21 Number 3 2017

SPECIAL ISSUE: A realistic utopia? Critical analyses of The Human Rights State in theory and deployment

GUEST EDITORS: René Wolfsteller and Benjamin Gregg

ISSN 1364-2987

Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group

The International Journal of Human Rights

Volume 21 Number 3 March 2017

Special Issue: A realistic utopia? Critical analyses of The Human Rights State in theory and deployment

Guest editors: René Wolfsteller and Benjamin Gregg

CONTENTS

Introduction

- 219 A realistic utopia? Critical analyses of The Human Rights State in theory and deployment:
Guest editors' introduction
René Wolfsteller and Benjamin Gregg

Articles

- 230 The institutionalisation of human rights reconceived: the human rights state as a sociological
'ideal type'
René Wolfsteller
- 252 'Achieved not given': human rights, critique and the need for strong foundations
Yingru Li and John McKernan
- 270 The human rights project and the transformation of social (b)orders: on the political nature of human rights activism in the wake of the Zapatista uprising
Richard Georgi
- 289 Democracy, social authoritarianism, and the human rights state theory: towards effective citizenship in Brazil
Ulisses Tertio Neto
- 306 The human rights state and freedom of religion in south-eastern Europe: the case of Bosnia-
Herzegovina
Gorana Ognjenović and Jasna Jozelić
- 321 Revisiting the human right to democracy: a positivist analysis
Johannes Hendrik Fahner
- 342 Note from the field: applying a 'human rights cognitive style' in the Raoul Wallenberg
Institute's work on human rights education with universities
Olga Bezbozhna and Helena Olsson
- 359 The human rights state: theoretical challenges, empirical deployments: reply to my critics
Benjamin Gregg