

ACADÉMIE DE DROIT INTERNATIONAL
FONDÉE EN 1923 AVEC LE CONCOURS DE LA
DOTATION CARNEGIE POUR LA PAIX INTERNATIONALE

RECUEIL DES COURS
COLLECTED COURSES OF THE HAGUE
ACADEMY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

2026

Tome 452 de la collection

BRILL | NIJHOFF

Leiden/Boston

GENERAL TABLE OF CONTENTS

Power(s) in International Arbitration, Balancing Party Autonomy and State Sovereignty Through Arbitral Authority, by M. V. BENEDETTELLI, Professor at the University of Bari and Founding Partner of ArbLit in Milan	9-389
---	-------

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction. International arbitration as a power game in a world of fragmented normativity	25
Chapter I. Powers in the law of international arbitration	33
A. Overcoming the Babel in the international arbitration law discourse.	33
B. "Powers" and "party autonomy" in the "law" of "arbitration" when arbitration is "international": Five polysemies in need of clarification	35
1. The common wisdom	35
3. Arbitration as adjudication of legal disputes.	53
4. Party autonomy as the foundation of arbitration.	55
5. International arbitration: Seven alternative, partly overlapping, notions	64
(a) Arbitration actually or potentially linked with more State legal systems	64
(i) Arbitration-related matters on which courts may exercise jurisdiction.	65
(ii) Jurisdictional grounds	66
(iii) Applicable laws	72
(b) Arbitration conducted within the "international arbitration community"	75
(c) Arbitration conducted in compliance with the lex communis arbitralis	77
(d) Arbitration as an instrument of adjudication within the international community	79
(i) Inter-State arbitration	79
(ii) Investor-State arbitration.	82
(e) Arbitration as an instrument of adjudication in a non-State legal system.	91
(f) Arbitration as a dispute resolution mechanism exclusively grounded on party autonomy.	107
(g) Arbitration which the lex arbitri submits to a special regime due to its cross-border dimension	112
6. Power in legal discourse	112
C. Analysing powers in international arbitration	115
1. International arbitration as a power game between different actors	116
(a) The "conflictual dimension" of international arbitration law	119
(b) The ensuing potential tension between party autonomy, State sovereignty, and arbitral authority	122
Chapter II. The power to prescribe	128
A. The power of States to regulate arbitration	128
1. The constitutional law dimension.	128
(a) Arbitration and access to justice	129
(i) The existence of a valid consent to arbitrate.	130
(ii) The fundamental "right to arbitrate"	132
(iii) The extension to arbitration of the fair trial/due process guarantees	133

(b) Arbitration and market ordering	135
2. The scope of arbitration law	135
3. Mandatory rules, default rules, principles	139
B. Limits set out by international law	141
1. Customary law	141
2. Treaty law	144
(a) The New York Convention	145
(i) The pluralism of sources embedded in the New York Convention	146
(ii) Principles for handling the tension between pluralism of sources and uniformity in regulation	158
(b) Human rights protection treaties	171
(c) Regional integration treaties	184
(d) The ICSID Convention and other investment protection treaties	197
3. General principles of law	201
4. International comity	202
C. The role of party autonomy	203
1. The parties' choice of the applicable law	204
(a) The lex arbitri	204
(b) The lex contractus	207
(c) The non-contractual lex causae	207
(d) The lex processus	209
(e) The regulation of conflict-of-law issues	209
(f) The reference to institutional arbitration rules	210
2. The parties' choice of the legal system(s) of reference	211
3. Limits to party autonomy	212
D. The role of arbitral autonomy	215
1. Lawmaking by adjudicators	216
2. Lawmaking by arbitral tribunals	219
3. Limits to arbitral autonomy	220
(a) Considering the function of the power to prescribe	221
(b) Taking party autonomy seriously	222
(i) The parties' choice of the seat is not a matter of accident or convenience	223
(ii) The parties' choice of the seat and of the applicable law should be given effect irrespective of its contents and the circumstances in which it has been made, short of any ground of invalidity	227
(iii) The lack of regulation of a given issue in the arbitration law of the seat should not a priori mean that the relevant legal system considers it irrelevant or left entirely to the free determination of the parties or the arbitral tribunal	229
(iv) The parties' choice of the law governing the disputed contract should not be presumed to extend to non-contractual matters	230
(v) The parties' choice of the law governing the disputed contract includes the relevant mandatory provisions	232
(vi) The parties' choice of the law governing the disputed contract should be presumed to include also the provisions of the relevant legal system dealing with gaps in regulation	236

(vii) The parties' failure to choose the applicable law should not be interpreted as if the parties endowed the arbitral tribunal with the power to determine it at whim	236
(viii) The parties' choice of the applicable law is without prejudice to the application of any relevant overriding mandatory rule	238
(c) Protecting the effet utile of the arbitral proceedings	239
(d) Considering the parties' legitimate expectations	243
Chapter III. The power to adjudicate	245
A. Dealing with the conflictual dimension of international arbitration.	246
1. Making use of the private international law technique	250
2. Determining the applicable law in commercial arbitration	267
3. Determining the applicable law in investment arbitration	270
B. The allocation of the power to adjudicate	292
1. Jurisdictional issues	292
(a) Whether the parties may enter into "squared" arbitration agreements	294
(b) Whether a "priority rule" applies to the benefit of arbitral tribunals	296
(c) Whether courts may review the merits of arbitral decisions on jurisdiction or only annul them on specific grounds.	297
(d) Whether courts should exercise self-restraint when addressing jurisdictional issues or reviewing jurisdictional awards	298
(e) Whether courts may review arbitral decisions denying jurisdiction	299
(f) Whether jurisdictional issues are addressed as preliminary questions or by granting relief	301
(g) Whether preclusions apply to jurisdictional objections	303
2. Procedural issues	304
3. Merit issues	305
C. Interferences and possible coordination between arbitral and court proceedings	308
1. Stay of the proceedings	308
2. Forum non conveniens	311
3. Anti-suit injunctions	312
D. The preclusive and conclusive effect of awards and judgments	318
Chapter IV. The power to enforce	326
A. Enforcement as an expression of imperium	326
B. The power to enforce between party autonomy and applicable laws	328
1. Party autonomy	328
2. Applicable laws and recognition of foreign decisions	329
C. The enforcement powers of courts	331
D. The enforcement powers of arbitral tribunals	334
E. The enforcement powers of arbitral institutions	336
Chapter V. Balancing party autonomy and state sovereignty through arbitral authority: towards a "virtuous" forum shopping?	337
A. International arbitration as a playground for forum shopping.	337
B. Shopping in the market of arbitration laws	340
1. Understanding forum shopping	341
(a) "Forum shopping" stricto sensu and "law shopping"	342

(b) The mirage of harmonisation by uniform law	343
(c) "Vicious" v. "virtuous" forum shopping	345
2. The "market of arbitration"	347
3. Governing forum shopping in the market of arbitration	350
C. Models for regulating forum shopping in the arbitration of corporate, financial markets and insolvency disputes: The EU experience	353
1. Corporate disputes	355
2. Financial markets disputes	368
3. Insolvency disputes	375
4. The common rationale and methodology	383
D. The exercise of arbitral authority in view of a virtuous forum shop- ping	386