

EUROPEAN LAW REVIEW

Volume 30 No. 6 December 2005

*Editors: Anthony Arnall
Damian Chalmers*

Editorial The Court of Justice and the Third Pillar

The bride of Messina: constitutionalism and democracy in Europe
Daniel Halberstam

Rules of procedure do matter: the legal status of the institutions' power of self-organisation
Silvère Lefevre

The European Community's competence for a comprehensive harmonisation of contract Law – an empirical analysis
Stefan Vogelauer & Stephen Weatherill

EC competition law and cultural diversity: the case of the Cinema, music and book publishing industries
Evangelia Psychogiopoulou

Analysis and Reflections

THOMSON

SWEET & MAXWELL

European Law Review

December 2005

Editorial—The Court of Justice and the Third Pillar	773
Articles
The bride of Messina: constitutionalism and democracy in Europe Daniel Halberstam	775
Rules of procedure do matter: the legal status of the institutions' power of self-organisation Silvère Lefevre	802
The European Community's competence for a comprehensive harmonisation of contract law—an empirical analysis Stefan Vogenauer & Stephen Weatherill	821
EC competition law and cultural diversity: the case of the cinema, music and book publishing industries Evangelia Psychogiopoulou	838
Analysis and Reflections
Extending "indirect effect" to the third pillar: the significance of Pupino ? Maria Fletcher	862
Preliminary problems and jurisdiction uncertainties: the admissibility of questions referred by bodies performing quasi-judicial functions Georgios Anagnostaras	878
Celtec : asking the Court of a Justice for a date or the limits of consensual behaviour in privatisations Gavin Barrett	891
Book Reviews	903
Table of cases	i
Table of legislation	xxxix
Index	liii