

HARVARD HUMAN RIGHTS JOURNAL

Articles

The Tragedy of Victimization Rhetoric: Resurrecting the “Native” Subject in International/Post-Colonial Feminist Legal Politics Ratna Kapur

Extraordinary Evil, Ordinary Crime: A Framework for Understanding Transitional Justice Miriam J. Aukerman

Boundaries in the Field of Human Rights

The International Human Rights Movement: Part of the Problem? David Kennedy

Author! Author!: A Response to David Kennedy Hilary Charlesworth

Refugee Law, Gender, and the Human Rights Paradigm Deborah E. Anker

Internationalist Gatekeepers?: The Tension Between Human Advocacy and Human Rights Jacqueline Bhabha

The Key Human Rights Challenge: Developing Enforcement Mechanisms Terry Collingsworth

The World Bank and Human Rights: The Need for Greater Accountability Dana L. Clark

Rhetoric and Reality: Human Rights and the World Bank Korinna Horta

Notes

Essays: Pedagogy and Human Rights

Teaching Human Rights: Ambivalent Activism, Multiple Discourses, and Lingering Dilemmas Peter Rosenblum

The University’s Critical Role in the Human Rights Movement Henry J. Steiner

Volume Fifteen
Spring 2002
ISSN 1057-5057

NOTES

The Islamic Community in Bosnia and Herzegovina v. The Republika Srpska:
Human Rights in a Multi-Ethnic Bosnia

Brett Dakin 245

A Judicial Blackout: Judicial Impunity for Disappearances in Punjab, India

Jaskaran Kaur 269

ESSAY SECTION: PEDAGOGY AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Teaching Human Rights: Ambivalent Activism, Multiple Discourses, and Lingering Dilemmas

Peter Rosenblum 301

The University's Critical Role in the Human Rights Movement

Henry J. Steiner 317

BOOK NOTES 329