Cornell International Law Journal

Volume 41 Winter 2008 Number 1

SYMPOSIUM
Immigration Policy: Who Belongs?

ARTICLES

The Economics of International Labor Migration and the Case for Global Distributive Justice in Liberal Political Theory — Howard F. Chang

Fear of Discovery: Immigrant Workers and the Fifth Amendment — Keith Cunningham-Parmeter

The Underpinnings of Immigration and the Limits of Immigration Policy — Max J. Pfeffer

COMMENTS

Doing Policy from Below: Worker Solidarity and the Prospects for Immigration Reform — Frances Ansley

A Redesigned Immigration Selection System — Muzaffar Chishti

A Supreme Stretch: The Supremacy Clause in the Wake of IRCA and Hoffman Plastic Compounds — Kati L. Griffith

FILM REVIEW

Think Globally, Film Locally — Lance Compa

NOTES

Reproductive Injustice: An Analysis of Nicaragua's Complete Abortion Ban — Jocelyn E. Getgen

Brave New World: Neurowarfare and the Limits of International Humanitarian Law — Stephen E. White

www.lawschool.cornell.edu/ilj

CORNELL INTERNATIONAL LAW JOURNAL

Volume 41 | Winter 2008 | Number 1

SYMPOSIUM
Immigration Policy: Who Belongs?

ARTICLES

The Economics of International Labor Migration and the Case for Global Distributive Justice in Liberal Political Theory
Howard F. Chang 1

Fear of Discovery: Immigrant Workers and the Fifth Amendment
Keith Cunningham-Parmeter 27

The Underpinnings of Immigration and the Limits of Immigration Policy
Max J. Pfeffer 83

COMMENTS

Doing Policy from Below: Worker Solidarity and the Prospects for Immigration Reform
Frances Ansley 101

A Redesigned Immigration Selection System
Muzaffar Chishti 115

A Supreme Stretch: The Supremacy Clause in the Wake of IRCA and Hoffman Plastic Compounds
Kati L. Griffith 127

FILM REVIEW

Think Globally, Film Locally
Lance Compa 139

NOTES

Reproductive Injustice: An Analysis of Nicaragua's Complete Abortion Ban
Jocelyn E. Getgen 143

Brave New World: Neurowarfare and the Limits of International Humanitarian Law
Stephen E. White 177

Copyright © 2008 by Cornell University. All rights reserved.